

It makes a difference.

EDUCATIONAL STUDENT TRAVEL HAS BEEN PROVEN TO POSITIVELY BENEFIT STUDENTS, BOTH IN THE CLASSROOM AND OUT.

STUDENT BENEFITS

When students are exposed to travel at a young age, they become more outgoing and collaborative, and their tolerance, adaptability, and self-expression skills skyrocket. Not to mention:

60%

increase in willingness to know/learn/explore

56%

increase in independence and self-esteem

55%

more intellectual curiosity

52%

increased tolerance of other cultures

All statistics come from the Student and Youth Travel Association \(SYTA\), the premier professional trade association that promotes student travel worldwide.

EDUCATOR BENEFITS

When students take their education on the road, teachers see positive changes in students, too

The majority of educators believe that travel is extremely effective as a teaching resource, especially compared to computer-based learning and classroom instruction alone.

of teachers consider travel a priority to increase cultural awareness in students

74%

of teachers believe travel has a very positive impact on personal development

56%

of teachers believe that travel has a very positive impact on students' education and career path
